

THE EVENING STAR.
WASHINGTON.
THURSDAY, February 25, 1892.
CROSBY & SONS, Editors.

THE EVENING STAR has a regular and permanent circulation in Washington three times larger than that of any other paper in the city. As a local NEWS paper and Advertising Medium it has no competitor.

What can the democrats do in their caucus tonight that they cannot do without a caucus? An impression prevails that the anti-slavery movement is in a minority and the organization of the House is against them. But if they can save off a vote for a month or two, they reason, they may postpone it indefinitely. This will depend on the course of events, chiefly out of Congress. At present the silver movement seems to have attained its maximum and to be on the point of receding. If the democratic silverite states, or those hitherto in doubt on the question, show a disposition to abate the demand for free coinage the democratic members of Congress will be less inclined than they were to enact a free coinage measure. Any agreement on the part of the silverite members, or understanding of its majority members, to concede time for discussion and action on the Bland bill is subject to the course of events and the state of public opinion at a later day.

The prohibitionists failed to get a plank into the platform of the industrial conference at St. Louis, but a "black-eyed" woman suffragist secured the adoption of a supplementary resolution demanding of state legislatures the submission of the question of woman suffrage to the people of the several states. The conference adopted a platform, after a little shilly-shallying, according to the subsidiary idea "or some better plan." It is declared, of course, for free coinage of silver, against national banks, against all forms of monopoly of which it tried to convict both the old parties because they desired to confine the campaign approaching the coming of the tariff. The platform was adopted by the conference with aggressive enthusiasm. The third party controlled the entire proceedings of the conference, although the latter observed the strictest precaution of keeping its head in the sand until its formal proceedings were closed. At that moment the conference selected a committee to confer with "the people's party" as to the presidential question. This means that there will be a more or less formidable effort to control the votes of members of the farmers' and laboring men's organizations against both the old parties.

The German emperor's youthful talk as a "war lord," the utterance of his supposedly serious years about "dashing people to pieces" who "barred his way," and his memorable declaration that he was "the one ruler" and would "suffer no other," has been supplemented by a banquet speech at Brandenburg, where he spoke of "life being envenomed by nagging prevention," meaning opposition to the will of the government. This sublime sovereign may not be "ever fair," but he is the poet of the ideal, "ever young" in judgment and temper. Some fine day William is going to discover what he has been singularly blind to all along, but what everybody else has seen to be to-day, the German people. It may be too late for his own individual welfare when he makes the discovery. The autocrat of the latter part of the nineteenth century is a back number.

Explorer Long professes to silence the doubts of Explorer Stanley as to the discovery of an African race of pygmies by producing the little Princess Tika-Tika. It has been the custom of African explorers to disagree, and it is wonderful that they have not long since realized that they could manipulate the public with a good deal more ease by co-operating somewhat on the trust principle. There is no disputing the fact that Tika-Tika is a dwarf; the proposition that she is one of a race of dwarfs requires corroboration. That corroboration would greatly enhance her availability for exhibition purposes and would naturally be looked for within the exploring profession. Mr. Stanley is slow in grasping the business-like view of things.

Mr. Springer has aligned himself on the democratic presidential nomination. There is never any difficulty in Mr. Springer's way when he gets ready to align himself on any issue. It is very much to be doubted if a difficulty were ever recognized by the Illinoisian, however patent it may have been to others that for rock-wood the path. Mr. Springer has declared that Cleveland is not "in it," and that Palmer is; but there is a suspicion lingering in the public mind that he is merely waiting to see if Hill develops sufficient strength to justify a declaration in favor of the New Yorker.

England will honor herself as well as America if she erects, as proposed, a memorial to James Russell Lowell in Westminster Abbey. It will supplement the monument already there to Longfellow. The reason of these things is not only in the "kin beyond sea," as expressed by a great Englishman; it is also in the great fact of the unity of English literature.

The President is wise in recommending no specific sum as an additional appropriation for the world's fair and in leaving the matter to the discretion of Congress. At the same time he cordially approves the plan of extending farther national aid. This is in accordance with public opinion.

It was a young woman with a large Gainsborough hat who captured the St. Louis industrial conference in behalf of women's suffrage. It is a comfort to the average theatergoer to find another possible sphere for the big hat.

The New York health authorities are having a struggle with the Russian typhus. The disease would prove a variation frightful enough to be a worthy successor of the grip.

The famous Brooklyn tabernacle is to be sold under a mechanic's lien. Mr. Talmage might with propriety select for a text, "The laborer is worthy of his hire."

The rumor that Chicago wants the Capitol located in her midst probably without foundation. When she wants Congress she sends on a special train for it.

Among the small political pointers is the fact that Providence (R. I.) has declared for Cleveland in an election of delegates to the state convention.

The anxiety manifested concerning the rain making experiments would indicate that things are getting a little dryer than usual in the Senate.

A little news something syrupy was good a good deal of service for some of the patriots in clearing the silver question just after the election.

There is as yet no indication of the machine's having gotten out of order so as not to do the rest when Hill presses the button.

The prospect of expansive oratory in Congress on the tariff guarantees that institution a pretty fair lease of life.

Now that the ex-"400" has shrunk in actual numbers perhaps it will take up less space in the newspapers.

Mr. Cleveland has reason to be annoyed at the manner in which Springer was sprung on him.

One of the most conspicuous things in Hill's career is the manner in which he didn't "don't L."

The South Dakota divorce monopoly is one that seems not undeserving of investigation.

FERRY'S.

Like the breaking of day, when the gray dawn is streaked by the sunbeams of the rising sun, the new spring shades in the window are beginning to creep above the horizon of time. RIBBON has got a thousand uses and as a gown decorator is "in the front." Fact is that it is a beautiful thing. But this is a convenient and "artful" trimming. But it will "ins and outs" like everything else that is in "in" season. Of course the colors harmonize perfectly with the best shades that are being shown—novelties and all.

We have quoted some prices along with our descriptions. They represent qualities you may be sure of. There are lots of cheaper RIBBONS—would cost less and cost you less—but we would not like to ask you to spend your money in any such way. If you want to get them, but not here. We think too much of our hold on your confidence to run the risk of losing it with such trifling on good quality. Think before you spend your money in any such way. Our motto is—

"THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST."
ALWAYS TRUE. There is more profit for us in your satisfaction than in a single sale. That is the way we look at it.

A CARNIVAL OF COLOR.
